Why Only Rich Men?
See the New Automobiles
A Noise in the Dairy
Foolish Chinese Bandits

By Arthur Brisbane
OUR GOVERNMENT must select ambassadors to replace Dawes in London and Forbes in Tokio, and it is suggested that the chosen must be "men of wealth and maturity."
Savvy people, although a little genuine Americanism might replace maturity. Why is the wealth necessary? Franklin and Jefferson didn't have it, yet they made good American ambassadors to France and to England in times just as trying as this.
Wouldn't a real American man be as good as a real American pocketbook?

The 23rd national automobile show opens in New York City with interest as great as though the automobiles were a new invention.
In many respects 1932 cars truly are "new." Those that have not seen them have surprise in store.
It is no exaggeration to say that $700 and less, payable on any terms, will buy in beauty, comfort, durability and luxury what $10,000 could not have bought a few years ago.
The accomplishments of the American automobile industry are so far ahead of all foreign competition as to make comparison out of the question.

It is said that ONLY two and one-half million automobiles will be made in America this year.
Think what an amazing accomplishment such a production represents. More than two billions of dollars invested in labor and material produced by labor.

Only a few years ago, one "great automobile man" was rebuking Henry Ford's statement that Ford expected to make ten thousand cars a year. "He'll make the bankers lose their minds," said the rebuker. "He'll make the bankers lose their minds," said the rebuker. "He'll make the bankers lose their minds," said the rebuker.

To find new markets for more manufacturers is today's problem. The attention of the National Broadcasting Co. and all that manufacture radios, is directed to the important announcement that diseases and other germs in milk can be destroyed by sunlight as well as by heat.

Science may supply a milk purifying attachment for every can, enabling the farmer to change ordinary milk to "certified milk," with ease.
It does not sound impossible in an age that uses electricity in place of ice, and in place of coal.

These bandits have trapped a Japanese soldier, a Chinese bandit, a thousand for one and more.
The Japanese seem to be the only nation surviving the Great War. The Chinese seem to be the only nation that has been kept out of the big fight so carefully and wisely.

Other nations talk as though they would fight "it" and "but," but they do not mean it, always except a strong reason for should anybody take them too seriously.

France may carry out the threat to invade Germany, if Germany stops paying reparations. But that would be a parade, and a war.
Hiller says he would fight France. If he did, French airplanes could destroy as many German cities as have exploded, and as many German cities as have exploded, and as many German cities as have exploded.

The prosecutor in Honolulu demands death for Lieut. Masada and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Fortescue, accused of killing a Hawaiian. The Hawaiian was killed on an attack on the 20-year-old son of Lieut. Masada, Mrs. Fortescue's daughter.
Doctors at the hospital testified, after the repeated attacks made on her by five Hawaiians, that when the murdered woman, alleged to be one, that Mrs. Masada, the 20-year-old woman, was covered with bruises from her head to foot. It is not probable that there will be any execution in this case, but that matter is at least no execution of any white woman.

League of Nations gentlemen would let Japan march into China in revenge for the Chinese boycott on Japanese goods. This would prevent the buying goods from anybody. The League doesn't like that idea, and it would be particularly unpleasant for Britain to get a share of a world of such a kind.
It interests us, because it gives our government a chance to do or say something else for the first time, back with a polite, "O, excuse me, it wasn't said, excuse me."

Several Girl Witnesses Among
Group Called as Hitchcock
Begins Inquiry

Searching inquiry into fake insurance claims involving allegations against lawyers and physicians, was launched today by William H. Hitchcock, acting as special commissioner, appointed by Supreme Court.

The hearings were conducted in Commissioner Hitchcock's private office in the Tremont Building.

They are to be secret under order of the court. Seven or eight witnesses, several of them young women, were in the suite office, waiting to be called in the first case being investigated.

While similar to a grand jury investigation, it proved even more secret in some respects. This was necessary because of the ramifications and doubt as to alleged conspirators and because of necessary precautions not to arouse suspicion among those under investigation.

REGIN BY MANSFIELD
The character of the probe is said to be unprecedented in this state. A rival Atty. General, who is a commissioner is virtually filling the functions of a grand jury.

Frederick W. Mansfield is offering the evidence as special counsel. He was charged with the duty of investigating the case. He was charged with the duty of investigating the case. He was charged with the duty of investigating the case.

Mattapan Man Flees After Serving One Month of a Year's Sentence

James Bowles, 32, of Mildred Mattapan, escaped from the Norfolk County Jail, Dedham, early today, less than three weeks after he had started a one-year sentence on a statutory charge.

Jail officials discovered his absence a short time after his escape and immediately notified Dedham police. The report was faxed over the police teletype system and a wide search was launched for him throughout the Greater Boston area.

Officers at the jail investigated the escape and discovered that Bowles had calmly walked out the front door of the jail as the prisoners were returning from breakfast. He is dressed in the jail clothing and is believed to either be wearing slippers or in his stocking feet.

According to jail records, Bowles is 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 145 pounds, medium complexion, brown hair and hazel eyes.

Officials say he started a one-year sentence for a statutory charge Dec. 28. They regard him as a dangerous man as long as he is at large.

BRITAIN, FRANCE WHITE FOR 5-YEAR DEBT DELAY

U.S. PAY SOONER

Congress Against Extension, Which Comes as Aftermath of Reparations Repudiation

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 12 (INS)—Great Britain and France, acting jointly, are preparing to ask the United States for a five-year suspension of their debt payments, according to authentic reports today.

The exact form of the request for debt relief probably will await the conclusion of the League conference, set for Jan. 13 at which the whole debt-reparations situation will be discussed. The United States will not be represented officially at the League.

Germany's repudiation of reparations payments has served to reactivate the Franco-British move. Both have been paying their semi-annual obligations to the treasury with funds received from Germany. If the funds are no longer forthcoming, France and Britain will either find the money in their own resources, or obtain further relief from Washington.

CONGRESS AGAINST PLAN
The relief plan has been obtained with the approval of Congress, for the administration is determined to make any extension of the Hoover five-year moratorium. It is expected to pass Jan. 30, and Congress is expected to adjourn a month before June 30.

The present temper of Congress is primarily against any extension of the moratorium. Its approval of the one-year moratorium in 1929 was reluctantly given, and with the warning that it would not favor "additional delays."

If there is no extension, all foreign debts automatically go back on a basis of payments after June 30.

In the case of Britain, this will work a particular hardship because since the Hoover moratorium the gold standard and the pound sterling have depreciated approximately 25 per cent in value. As her debt is payable in dollars, this would compel Britain to pay about 25 per cent more on her next installment than in previous installments. Britain's annual payments to the United States amount to $100,000,000.

THE ALTERNATIVE to resuming payments next July would be to default—a step that Britain contemplates with dismay.

ALL PERU 'INSULTED' BY RENT BILL TO FIERY 'N. E. ENVOY'

CONSUL, LOCKED OUT BY HOTEL, WILL SUE

"Friend" of Mayor Curley, Gov. Ely and Other Notables Wires President

When you "insult" Senor Mariano Laos Lomer, self-styled Peruvian consul-general for New England, you insult all of Peru, including the high Andes and President Sanchez Cerro—therefore Senor Laos complained to his President by telegram today.

Senor Laos Lomer—he rarely uses his first name—claims he was humiliated by the management of the Copley-Plaza Hotel, whose material-minded personnel washed him to his cash on the line for a week's occupancy of a large suite, and several parties.

One of the entertainments was a 4 a. m. breakfast yesterday planned on the spur of the moment and to which many sleep-eyed and impatient mayors were invited by telephone—also on the spur of the moment.

MEET OUT, LUGGAGE IN
This early-hour breakfast resulted in a hint from the hotel management that if the fast-moving senator would give them a flash at the color of his money they might feel better.

Instead, the senator gave the management a check, and the hotel admitted today that until it should receive a complete report on the check the senator has been locked out of his suite—with his belongings intact.

Well, anyway, the senator declares he will sue the hotel, and he sent the following telegram, he says, to President Sanchez Cerro, whom Laos Lomer also considers to have been insulted, as well as every thing and everybody in the South American land, including the flames and the remnants of the same Indians.

DEMANDS REPARATIONS
The telegram reads:
President Sanchez Cerro, "22, Concordia, Lima, Peru" (That's Laos Lomer's newspaper, he says).

"Mr. President: My appointment as consul-general for New England has not reached Washington Department of State. I am not recognized by Peruvian embassy at Washington, nor by New York Consul-General. An indignity over incident occurred at Hotel Copley-Plaza where I am staying. Arthur I. Rice, president of N. E. Hotel Association, and manager of the Hotel Copley-Plaza of Boston, so report.

DIARY BARES MAY LOVE AFFAIRS

Former London-Paris Resident Seeks Death After Last Dinner With Friend

New York, Jan. 12 (INS)—Miss Mildred Fisher, pretty 32-year-old blonde, a former resident of London and Paris, plunged to her death today from the seventh floor apartment of a friend.

She left her bed to die in negligence after an evening of dining and drinking. She was said to have been depressed because of financial reverses.

PLUNGES TO DEATH
Her home was at the Hotel Gladstone, a fashionable residential hotel in 252 st., where she had lived much of the time for a year and continuously since her return from Paris last September.

She had dinner last night with Mrs. Eugene Stevenson, a friend of five years and, about 11 o'clock, retired.

About 3 a. m. Mrs. Stevenson was awakened by the sound of furniture being moved. She called out but received no answer. Arising, she found Miss Fisher was in the apartment. Looking out the window she made out a figure huddled on a one-story roof.

From a diary and letters found in Miss Fisher's room in the Gladstone, something was learned of her past. The diary was kept for the years 1929 and 1931, with notations about various stocks and love affairs. There were frequent references to alcohol drinking.

DIARY BARES GAY LIFE
"On the wagon," she had written. Then a few days later: "Off the wagon."

There was the simple entry: "Tight." And the next day: "Tight, Tight, Tight."

The pages of the diary were so filled with addresses and telephone numbers of two friends in London and on the continent.

Two letters, unsealed and unstamped, lay on a bureau. One was to friends in Paris, and both revealed her melancholy over the economic situation.

Under date of December 11 she wrote to Mons. Pachen, Hotel Clugne, Champe Elysee, Paris: "It is difficult here. London is the best. The men spend millions, but not on women. I expect to open a fashionable saloon in a few weeks."

She wrote she expected a "great Russian violinist" to "see her son and play music for her."

"That is the only way I can find relaxation," she added.

The police found her father is George M. Fisher, living at 140 Madison st., New York.

"I have not seen my daughter for 15 years. She ran away from home when she was 16 or 17, and I haven't seen her since."

Takes Own Life

Livingston Davis, Belgian consul in Boston, who ended his life in Brookline yesterday. Ill health is seen as motive.

DAVIS SUICIDE UNDER PROBE

Brookline police today resumed investigation of the suicide of Livingston Davis, Belgian consul at Boston, believed to have been due to failing health.

His body was found in a wooded area on the estate adjoining his in Dudley st., Chestnut Hill, a short time after he had left for a stroll following his return to his home yesterday from Concord, where he had been undergoing treatment for a spinal trouble.

Police said today they would endeavor to learn where Davis got the .32 caliber revolver with which he took his life. It was thought he might have taken it from his home, but this fact could not be established because of the collapse of his widow.

Davis, who was widely known, was a graduate of Harvard and a disciple of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and was his assistant when the latter was assistant-secretary of the navy.

Rehoboth Death Victim Identified

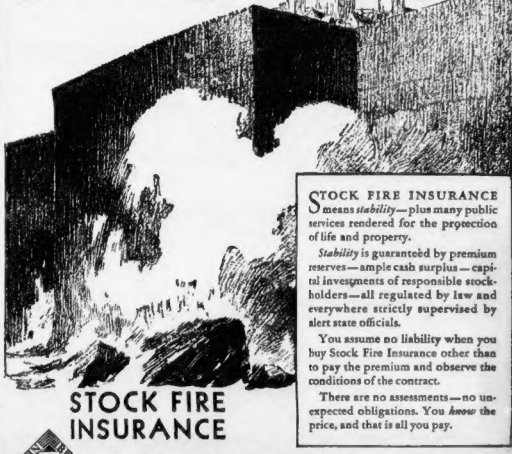

Rehoboth, Jan. 12—State police today identified as Francis J. Mery, 23, of Lackawanna, N. Y., a youth who was killed by an auto-truck on the Fall River-Grainville road last night.

The truck, owned by a New Bedford company, was operated by Frank L. Gray of Marion.

JUDGE LOOKS AT GUSTIN GANG DEATH SPOT

Municipal court moved into the shooting gallery section of the North End today.

Judge Francis Good, who will decide whether any or all of seven men charged with the Gustin-Vish murders shall be held for the grand jury, visited the scene of the shooting at 317 Hanover st. before the hearing of evidence was resumed in the courtroom.

The judge was accompanied by half a score police officials promoting the case and by a battery of defense counsel.

VIEWERS WHOLE BUILDING

Small crowds gathered to glimpse the novelty of a court visit to the district where, in the last two years, the guns of gangsters have had little chance to cool.

A dark stain on the second floor landing marked the spot where Bernard "Doc" Walsh was found slain. A few slugs about Special Officer Hassen Chambers pointed out where he arrested Antonio Paoli.

On the third floor, the judge was shown the C. & F. Importers' office, with which Joe Lombardi, Salvatore Cangini and Franco Cucchiara have been identified.

BULLET SEARS REMAIN

The former office of Julius Wolfson, attorney, now vacant except for a "To Let" sign and a photograph of Theodore Roosevelt, was where Frankie Gustin's body lay, and where Special Officer William Teacher testified he found Timothy Corley hiding behind a screen.

Broken windows have been replaced, but bullet scars still are marked on furniture and walls. The places where eight guns were found discarded were pointed out, and a huge police assemblage was used to light up the basement, while Judge Good looked over the spot where two guns were found hidden in sawdust bags.

BOSTON NINTH IN TAX LIST

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—While in comparable tax rates New York ranks sixth among 13 cities of over 500,000 population, its assessed valuation of real estate per capita is more than three times that of Chicago, and from $322 to $1616 more than that of other cities in the group, the Institute for Public Service announced today.

The comparison, the institute said, are like the following table taken from a report on 250 cities for 1931 by C. E. Richter of the Division Bureau of Governmental Research, and the valuations per capita and tax rates on full value of 12 largest cities.

City	Valuation per capita	Tax rate on full value
New York	$1,616	14.44

BODIES OF CHILD VICTIM SOUGHT IN OHIO

Cincinnati, Jan. 12 (INS)—A grim search was conducted in a tenement house cellar today.

A squad of firemen, armed with shovels and picks, excavated in the basement of the house occupied by Charles Bluchoff, 4, whose body, suspected of having attacked, slain and buried in quicklime the bodies of little children.

Bluchoff is the confessed slayer of Mary Melan.

He admitted finding the six-year-old child down an alley and attacking her. In his confession he asserted he found her dead the next morning.

If he had mistreated other children, Bluchoff refused to answer.

RUM 'BRIBERY' TRAIL IN N. E.

The government probe of grafting between Coast Guards and rum-runners has spread into New England.

Starting in New York and Long Island, where numerous instances of bribery were said to have been uncovered, the investigation has been extended through the East.

Four Department of Justice agents have been working on a mysterious mission in Fall River.

Meanwhile coast guards along the North Shore were maintaining a special watch for attempts to run in huge cargoes of illicit liquor, reported aboard several schooners anchored off shore.

Around New Bedford, Fall River and along the Cape, federal officials believe, the bulk of the liquor smuggled into the state makes its entry.

Radio Used in Hunt For Missing Savant

Austin, Tex., Jan. 12 (INS)—An extensive search was being made today throughout Texas for Dr. Hermann Joseph Muller, associate professor of sociology at the University of Texas, missing since Sunday.

An appeal was broadcast last night, Dr. Muller's colleagues said he had appeared nervous and explained his condition as due to overwork.

Government Moves to Clean Up Honolulu

Washington, Jan. 12 (INS)—The full force of all three branches of the federal government was mobilized today for a quick investigation and clean-up of crime conditions in Honolulu, characterized by Senator Hale of Maine, as "deplorable."

Shocked by the situation pictured in official dispatches from the commandant of the naval district in Honolulu, Admiral Sterling, to the Secretary of the Navy, following a criminal attack by five natives upon the young wife of a naval officer and the subsequent killing of one of the suspects, federal authorities lost no time in getting into action.

Fortescue Once Figure in Nosed Divorce Case

Worcester, O., Jan. 12 (INS)—Maj. Granville Fortescue, whose wife is charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of a native in Honolulu, figured prominently in a court case 27 years ago which attracted unusual attention, it was revealed today.

Maj. Fortescue, a prominent soldier and author, was named co-respondent in the notorious Maj. Elmore F. Tappan divorce case, which was tried in 1905.

TWITTERINGS! THE LITTLE BIRDS WERE SO BUSY today we almost forgot to attend our French class. So many amusing things we heard, we have been smiling all day long.

Amusing and yet pathetic is the story that all of the Fair Things— young and not so young—who flock at beautiful old Trinity Church add to their prayers "Dear Lord, deliver us from the temptation of falling in love with Father Klondike." The Rev. Divine who has recently been called to Boston from the Sunshine of Baltimore is young, attractive and sincere. Why not fall in love with him? Is it not better to love a beautiful and unattainable ideal than to try and make an ideal out of a freak of Mayfair?

Positively funny is the story of the young matron who invited a friend's child to luncheon and assured the child's mother that the choreman would bring her back safely. "Choreman," murmured the fond parent to herself, "Oh, thank you so much, my dear, but I will come over and get Patsy myself. I am going to take her for her walk." On the way back home with Patsy she met another friend and queried, "What can Youthful Matron mean by sending my child home by a CHOREMAN?" "Oh, my dear," answered the friend, "that is only Y. M.'s way of describing her chauffeur. She thinks it sounds better to call him a chauffeur in these depressing times, so she calls him her CHOREMAN." It is to laugh how some people are economizing!

Leave Soon on European Tour

BURSTING THE BONDS OF BOREDOM. MRS. JOHN K. HOWARD and Miss Mary Curtis of the North Shore and elsewhere are going on a 10-week trip to Europe, and from there will go on a cruise through sunny climes. Mrs. Howard is one of the most beautiful of the young marrieds, tall, slim and chic. We have often wondered how she stood the dull days of Hamilton. Mary Curtis has always been a world within herself. They sail very soon to leave family cares behind and refresh themselves in the beauties of Europe.

Recovering

IT WAS WITH GENUINE REGRET that we learn of the serious automobile accident in which Harry Moseley was injured on New Year's Day in Philadelphia. It will be some time before he will be as beautiful as ever when she arrives home.

Plans Shower

BETTY RICHARDSON IS GIVING a shower, a suchon shower for Katherine Howe this week. Miss Howe has gone to New York to acquire her wedding dress and trousseau, we hear. Some Boston courtiers were a little apprehensive? After the wedding the bride and groom will reside in Dover. If they find just the cozy little Colonial house for which they are searching. Saw Anne Sutton today. Anne is always noticeably chic, especially in black catwalk coat and matching hat.

At Movies

IT WAS NOT THE MRS. whom we saw with Freddy Ames at the movies the other evening. But perhaps she was somewhere about. At any rate, Mrs. Corby Fox was in the party, looking radiant after her fairly new divorces and stacks of alimony.

Portraits Shown

KLEBER HALL'S EXHIBITION of portraits will be well attended AND criticized, we think. It is being held at the Junior League, and so many of the girls have sat for him it will be like a family gallery. Jessie and Laura Dupes and Elizabeth Scuffs will show the world how they look in charcoal and WG are going to see what he has thought of Ann Clifford. About whom we have ideas of our own. Marjorie Merrill will probably appear in tennis dress and Annette Trafford will also be on view.

Beautiful Picture

A BEAUTIFUL PICTURE should be that of Mrs. William Tudor Gardiner, wife of the governor of Maine, and her daughter, Miss Margaret. She is the sister of Mrs. Samuel Watson, out much handomer. Among the men who have had Mr. Kleber peruse them are Messrs. Howard Cornish and Sewell Jones, and Sylvia Watson. Ann Lyman, Ellen and Anne Robinson, as well as Mrs. Frances Parkman have been praised for portraiture by Mr. Kleber Hall in the style of Holbein.

Planning Trip

TWO PAST-DERS ARE planning a trip abroad and we hear it is ALONE but we don't believe it. Susan Brewer and Sarah Peiray are pursuing travel pamphlets.

ENGLISH SPEAKING UNION IS TEA HOSTESS

Theater Group Entertained at Event

The English Speaking Union is holding open house this afternoon at 25 Commonwealth ave. for a tea at 4. This is a monthly affair, each meeting given over for an hour to a speaker, today's being the Rev. Willard S. Sperry, dean of the Harvard Theological School. The guests are being greeted by the two hostesses, Mrs. Edward H. Warren and Mrs. Richard M. Saltonstall. Serving at the tea tables are Mrs. Rudolph Weld, Mrs. Everett Morse, Jr. and Mrs. Kennard Winsor.

A most interesting group always gathers at these teas, but included in today's guests will be several of the cast who opened "The Good Companions" last evening at the Shubert Theater.

Acting President

As Mrs. William C. Cox, formerly Jessie Sanezoff, is still recuperating from the South from the operation for which she spent several weeks in the Phillips House, Mrs. Le Baron Carlton Colt (Josephine Jewell) will take her place as acting president of the Vincent Club until she returns, just before the show in March. However, all her friends are very glad to hear that Mrs. Cox is getting along splendidly and will soon be entirely well. Mrs. Colt has taken most efficient charge of everything pertaining to the treasury of Vincent Club for the past two or three years, as well as being a member of the executive committee and will be most able to take up the duties of president very easily, until Mrs. Cox can relieve her. Tryouts for the show start this coming Friday at the Somerset (Princess ballroom), where about 200 girls will be judged for their ability to dance, sing or act.

Visiting Friends

It was a pleasure to catch a glimpse of that charming Philadelphia, Miss Mignon Federer, last Saturday, at the reception after the wedding of Miss Barbara Welch and Mr. Ernest Stanley Dane, Jr. She is here for the week, visiting first the W. Romaine Penobscot in Milton, and later Miss Virginia McNeil in Chestnut Hill.

"There's no magic about keeping the charm of youth," says this popular Broadway star who triumphed last season in The Viceroy's Tree. "It's just a matter of regular complexion care. For years I've used Lux Toilet Soap."

"It is said that a woman is as old as she looks, and a man as old as he feels," says this famous star of the stage and screen. "Several years ago, I discovered that regular care with Lux Toilet Soap would do wonders for my skin and I use it regularly."

"Only the woman who looks it has had to admit her age," says this famous screen star who is now winning fresh laurels on Broadway in Mourning Becomes Electric. "For years I have used Lux Toilet Soap and my skin is so smooth."

... But these lovely stars know the Secret of keeping Youthful Charm

ANY woman can laugh at birthdays— if she is wise. The recent photographs above are proof of it! "Very few actresses look their age, you notice," says lovely Alla Nazimova. "It is easy to be lovely at sixteen or seventeen, but to be still lovelier at thirty, at forty, and over . . . well, that is easy, too, if a woman is wise."

Because keeping youthful charm is vitally important to them, actresses take vigilant care of their skin. You will want to know how!

9 out of 10 Screen Stars use it

One favorite soap keeps lovely 98% of the exquisite complexions you see on the screen. Of the 613 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 605 use Lux Toilet

THIS IS LIFE

SINCLAIR TRUE IDEALIST, WORTHY CHOICE FOR
NOBEL PRIZE
By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE ANNOUNCEMENT has been made that a petition of 770 signatures presents the name of Upton Sinclair for the Nobel Prize in literature. The petition was, apparently, started abroad, where Sinclair is much more respected as an author and a controversialist than he is in America. Einstein was influential in launching it. Shaw and Romain Rolland signed it, some 80 British writers and thinkers "qualified to make such an endorsement" and some 400 Americans. As I was one of the 400, a word or two of comment may be helpful.

I am inclined to think the petition ill-considered, in that it is unlikely that immediately following the award of the Nobel Prize to Sinclair Lewis, another American will be considered seriously. Still, you never can tell. There is no doubt that all over Europe Upton Sinclair is considered very seriously indeed as a sociological novelist and reformer. There are many people in the United States who are of the opinion that a European endorsement is sufficient reason for conferring an American award. Still, it must be acknowledged that in several important cases Europe, particularly England, has recognized the greatness of certain American writers years before we did. We came to accept the European judgment in the cases of Edgar Allan Poe, Walt Whitman, Mark Twain, and, more recently, Robert Frost. I offer the analogy for what it is worth.

Near Top in International Ranking

As to Sinclair's reputation in Europe the proof is clear, in a pamphlet which lists the foreign editions and translations of his works. It is a bibliography of 525 titles in 34 separate countries. In England there are 28 titles, in France 16, in Sweden 27, in Germany 35, in China 19 and in Japan 30, in the Yiddish 12, and in Russia nearly 200. It is almost certain that no other living American writer has such a foreign reputation, is known by so many of his works in so many countries. He ranks, that is to say, with Shaw and Wells in international importance, and his nearest American competitor is the late Jack London.

The next point to be considered is that the Nobel Prize is an international prize. The conditions of the award specify clearly that nationality is not to be taken into consideration when making an award. It is, of course, clearly understandable why so many of the awards have gone to Scandinavians or to Germans, whose work, naturally, would be better known in Sweden than those in other languages. A writer who wins the Nobel Prize in literature must to a considerable extent have transcended national boundaries and cultures, as, for instance, Shaw and Kipling have transcended them. Obviously, too, Sinclair Lewis would not have been given the prize had not his novels been very well known abroad.

Those of our writers of whom we are fonddest because we feel them to be particularly American, such writers as Booth Tarkenton and Mrs. Wharton, obviously have little or no appeal to the foreign reader. They are like humorists who are best appreciated in the family circle. For foreign appreciation something on a larger scale is necessary, and Mr. Sinclair's point of view is, of course, an international one. Wherever modern industrial civilization exists and wherever the idea of the social revolution has penetrated—the two terms are synonymous—his books can be appreciated because his ideas can be understood.

Devoted Life to His Ideal

The last point to be taken up is precisely that point on which the most criticism will be focused. The Nobel will provide that the prize in literature be given for "the most distinguished work of an idealistic tendency." Originally the intention was to award a prize for the best work of a single year, as the Pulitzer Prize foundation does. But in practice the award has been given for a writer's whole work, the sum total of his literary tendency.

That being so, no one who has any sense of the meaning of words can deny that Upton Sinclair is the one living writer in the United States whose entire output has been written strictly from an idealistic point of view. He has devoted his entire life to preaching the doctrine of orthodox socialism—as distinguished from anarchism or communism—on the basis of the ideal (or picture in his head) of what the perfect socialist state will be like when put into effect.

Unfortunately the ordinary American use of the word "ideal" and "idealism" is a loose and ineffectual and vulgarized use. By idealists we usually mean the platitudes of accepted belief, as in the books of Harold Bell Wright, or what might be called the sentimental view of life, as contrasted with the idealistic, as in the Pollyanna books. True idealism, which necessarily implies severe criticism of the existing and imperfect fact, we reject as being unhealthy and unamerican, and we treat our sincere and indignant idealists far worse than we treat our licensed purveyors of literary sentiment and lubricity. Upton Sinclair, then, is above all else a consistent idealistic moralist, the pioneer of an unpopular cause, the champion of a noble (however chimerical) experiment.

Sinclair's Pen Has Brought Results

For many years he suffered under a boycott such as perhaps no other American writer ever suffered. He had to publish his books himself, secure publicity for them in devious ways, merchandise them himself. Few publications in the United States would review them; he would not even print advertisements of them. Such was the result of his undoubted literary and controversial success during the Muck-Raking Era with such books as "The Jungle" and "King Coal." To "The Jungle" we undoubtedly owe such federal protection as exists today of food products. "King Coal" we owe much of the awakening of public mind in the economic and human failure of the coal mining industry.

Then in recent years he made a comeback as an important American novelist. "Oil" is at the time a novel as has been written in America during the past decade, in plan, scope and sustained power. "Boston" is a document in the Sacco-Vanzetti case that cannot be ignored. It is true that his books are sparingly represented in public libraries—along with many others by men of acknowledged genius. But the comfortable, book-reading middle class does not, perhaps, suspect how large a public he has among the serious-minded working class. The man has influence and a following far beyond that of many touted best-sellers.

Floyd Dell has written a little book about him which is well worth reading. It would at least save the American public from having to confess complete ignorance of Upton Sinclair—in case he did actually win the Nobel Prize.

BOND ISSUE OF 100 MILLION PROPOSED

Mayor Murphy of Somerville Offers Plan to Aid All Classes of Workers

A $100,000,000 property bond issue, open to public subscription, is advocated by Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville in a bill filed by Senator James C. Scanlon, of that city, at the State House.

There is now one idea which would be up to $2,000,000 for extra and tens, in life time over financial difficulties.

$2,000,000 in asset deposits in closed banks.

$500,000 for public improvements, including reclamation and parks and road development.

Unsettled river land control, abolition of grade crossings, harbor developments, and buildings and bridge construction.

ANNUAL WORKERS. The vast program, the Mayor stated, would assist every class of workers.

The big argument for the property bond issue, he said, is that the people are repaying too much from banking institutions.

"They expect the banks to remain solvent despite the depreciation of assets, and also expect the banks to finance public improvements, as well as the municipalities. By selling these bonds I suggest now the owner at five per cent payable in 20 years, even there would be no difficulty in raising them."

RELEASE BIG NEWS. The mayor pointed out that there was a surplus of $5,000,000 in the savings banks of the state on Oct. 31. In the cooperative banks, there was $260,000,000, or a decrease of $2,000,000. There was a further decrease of $12,000,000 in the commercial department of trust companies, which year ago reached the figure of $14,700,000.

The savings department of trust companies, according to the mayor's figures, on October 31 had a total of $230,000,000, an increase of $73,000,000.

The mayor said the bond issue would put back into circulation vast sums of money which had been removed from the banks, as well as other money that is being hoarded.

With the foremen of the schooner torn away, three sailors, snatched from watery graves, were safe with their craft in Gloucester today.

They were rescued last night 15 miles northeast of Zbadach's Light after a flaming barrel of fish oil was seen by the lookout of the schooner Seraphina.

Hazard and were by a day of helplessness drift the rescued men Capt. William Ross, Leroy Little and Hoyt Cheney, all of Eastport Me., were about to abandon hope when the Seraphina arrived.

In the two-masted schooner Seraphina they left Eastport two weeks ago with a cargo of fish oil for Boston. After a stormy voyage, the schooner arrived out in a northeast storm.

Several barrels of oil were burned before the Seraphina equipped with an engine and a tank the Marquette in 1910.

MASTERPIECE OF WASHINGTON TO STAY HERE

Athenaeum Declines to Let Gilbert Stuart Painting Go to Capital

The quest of a George Washington masterpiece for exhibit at the Washington biennial exhibition in Washington, has turned to Boston—and was refused.

This was learned today by the Boston Evening American as the Boston court met over the New York exhibit of "Washington Court."

The Boston Evening American reported the loss of the $20,000 Gilbert Stuart painting for use in an exhibit at the national capital.

Meanwhile, the New York painting was due for re-creation in the Metropolitan Art gallery. From its place of storage since officials decided it did not properly depict the historic event it shows.

Boston's refusal was given by the George Washington Bicentennial Commission because of the rules of the Athenaeum.

"There were two major reasons for refusing to let the painting go to Washington," said C. K. Bolton, librarian at the Athenaeum today.

"The first reason was that the painting had been passed by the trustees of the Athenaeum, which means the picture, forbidding the loan of the picture."

And reason was that the picture was in the Boston Art Museum, where the celebrated canvas is deposited, plan in hand an exhibit in Boston at about the same time.

"Let's go," yelled Capt. Fitz, "we'll take this guy for a ride."

HOW THE STORY STARTS. Capt. "Fightin' Jim" Fitzpatrick gets his brother Ed ordered to police headquarters to help him expose the vice squad, which he claims framed Danny Beaumont and had her sentenced to three years in a reformatory. The four boys have been found murdered in a warehouse and Capt. Jim starts to call on the "Big Boy" at Collis.

GIUSEPPE BELMONTE, old prosy dealer of murder, seduction and corruption, tipped a fat forefinger meditatively on his glass-topped desk. He spoke in low, almost inarticulate tones.

"I don't think he'd be sucker enough to pick me or pick my blonde," he said, turning his furtive, pin-head eyes on the pretty blond-haired girl at his right and then on the hawk-faced man who sat across the desk from him.

"Of course he wouldn't," explained the man. "What's he got on you?" He's just looking to make a monkey out of himself—and I wouldn't be surprised if he didn't bring along a couple of renegades, so they could turn how 'Fightin' Jim Fitzpatrick bearded the lion.

THESE MODERN LOVERS
AND THEIR WAYS

By HELEN ROWLAND

BEING IN LOVE means merely spending half your time doing fish things, which you are bound to spend the other half regretting.

When a man reaches the age where he can no longer feel the ecstasy and enchantment of love, he begins trying to convince himself and the world that love is nothing but a biological urge.

When a man "pleads his love," these days, it sounds less like a plea than like a selling talk, offering you something "special" at a great, big, wonderful bargain.

A woman may know that the man who "got away" would have made her utterly miserable; but, somehow, that never is any consolation for not having married him.

Doubtless, many a girl would rather double pneumonia in these backless evening gowns, if she happened to leave off her big earrings.

A woman-hater is not so often a man who has passed up the love of love as he is the one who has turned the glass and is suffering from the headache.

To a modern woman, a "necessity" is anything she thinks she ought to have, because some other woman has it.

Theoretically, every girl is in favor of good old-fashioned marriage, just as she is in favor of old-fashioned religion and morality. It's getting home to them in practice, that requires such a lot of effort and persuasion.

Many a man has deliberately tried to awaken a woman's love, in the foolish delusion that he can fall back to sleep again in a few weeks.

The practiced lover may sometimes take his love-making seriously, but he is always surprised and hurt if the girl does.

Sketches today are two of the very newest hats now being displayed in the leading showrooms catering to millinery.

First is a velvet cap with a wide brim and a veil, and made of bright green felt cut in narrow bands with scalloped edges. It is pulled down low over the left side, while at the right side it is high and far back, this line marked by a small narrow wing of black feathers. Model from Le Monnier. The other model is by Mme. Inferiority Complex

Alibi?

By ELISE ROBINSON

ALL THESE people who go winning and peevish around,

then admit in fact practically boast —that it's because they have "inferiority complexes!"

That term has certainly become a grand, blanket alibi for a lot of good, old-fashioned, human cusdoms. And I suspect it is because the term itself is too clumsy, it is actually put a premium on belittling.

Would they boast that way if the world laughed at them and told them they had just a fit of puffs?

Of course they wouldn't. But being used up like that with scientific terminology, they naturally want to show off.

Remember when you and I were 18 or 20, stranger, and full of the mad had quipped, "into un-trun, cherishing grudges, going off in corners and chewing out loud.

Did you ever pull a face, a scornful face and tell us we were suffering from an "inferiority complex" and then try to analyze and codify it out of us?

They did not. They told us we were downright ornery, and that if we didn't perk up and quit our complaints they'd lambaste the evening delights out of us. Which modern technique, if you will, was quite different from the "inferiority complex" which we are now so fond of.

But such reactions are not continuous. They are symptoms of a deeper trouble. There's a reason for them, and science has discovered that reason.

Of course there's a reason. But who is to blame?

Our ancestors also realized that there were reasons behind human moodiness, even if they hadn't been coached by Messrs. Freud and Adler.

They knew perfectly well why little Annabelle Rose had a temper tantrum. They knew why her baby brother was born, but they didn't waste time of latter young Annabelle

Rose by explaining that she had developed an inferiority complex.

They merely said that her "nose was out of joint," and told her to run along and behave herself or they'd know the reason why. And generally speaking, Annabelle Rose snapped out of it and became helpless.

Why all due respect to scientific progress, I do feel that this rough-and-ready method had the bulge on our modern technique. It was the cassidiness by telling some ornery human being that he had an "inferiority complex?" Far from it. He was merely telling you that he had something "rare and important," swells up like a dirigible and goes around showing off and boring

everyone to tears with the details.

So I am inclined to think that the abolition of scientific titles for the abandonment of plain speech.

These institutional investors have proven that stock market forecasting is a much more complicated process than is generally believed.

Liquidation of a block of 10,000 shares of a stock like United States Steel is a task that is not easily accomplished. It will probably increase the names on the stockholders' list of that giant corporation.

• • •

Professional shrewd stock investors in which a trust of investors is involved, a stock that is liquidated always makes more difficult and forces sellers to take lower prices than otherwise for their stock.

• • •

It will do little good the disasters in the whole world which culminated in a final liquidation move.

He Withdrew His $11,500 and Went on a Toot

Mr. Joseph A. Maynard, a respected citizen, prominent in business, banking and civic affairs, writes to the Boston Evening American:

"I think your fine paper could render no more valuable service to the people at this time than to advise them of the danger and safety of withdrawing their deposits from the banks."

A man, drunk almost to the point of unconsciousness, was found by the police in Somerville the other day. HE HAD $11,500 IN BILLS IN HIS POCKET.

He had heard some rumors about a bank, went there, got his money and proceeded to go on a toot for himself.

What would have happened to him and his savings of a life-time if, by good fortune, he had not fallen into the custody of the police?

Another citizen of good intentions, like Mr. Maynard, tells us:

"I met a man on the street this morning who told me he had taken out $12,000 and buried it in his cellar."

"You can't take, why you tell me that?" said to him. "How do you know I won't turn thief, go over to your cellar and rob you of your money?"

A woman withdrew $2,000. She was met up with by a man and woman who told her they had found a pocketbook containing $5,000 in negotiable securities. They would divide the find with her, but they had to have some financial evidence of her creditability at the bank. She gave them the $2,000 and stood for four hours in the rain waiting for them to return. Which they did not do.

Of course these sharks were lying in wait at the bank for this good old woman and other gullible souls who, moved by rumors, distrust and false fear, were withdrawing their life savings from their place of safety.

The bank is a safe place. Money in tea kettles, in the cellar, between the mattresses, is a temptation even to people believed to be honest. It is easy prey for the thief.

Withdrawals of deposits without cause are expensive to the owners. One bank in Boston is said to have profited $200,000 in the accumulated interest it would have had to pay had the depositors allowed their funds to stay over the interest period.

Perhaps the flurry is over. It seems to be.

We hope it is. Because we are interested, as Mr. Maynard assumes, in the welfare of innocent but misguided people who are running the unnecessary and unwise risks which jeopardize their little fortunes.

It is a proven fact that no savings bank depositor in Massachusetts has ever lost a penny. Our banks in the main are safe and sound. The one thing that can jeopardize them and the funds of their depositors is the unwarranted withdrawal of funds. This is the thought for every citizen of Massachusetts to remember.

There Is a Way Out by Prosperity Loan

Several times under stress of war Americans have demonstrated they are capable of showing heroic qualities and of co-operating intelligently and effectively for national objectives.

With privation and suffering acute in the land, seven million out of work, and no hope held out for them at Washington, the time has come for real Americans to do as much for the peaceful purposes of social reconstruction and the alleviation of distress as they have done hitherto in wars.

THERE IS A WAY OUT of the dilemma of privation for the ill-fated jobless, their families, their tradesmen and all business dependent upon them.

It has been pointed out clearly and definitely by a group of eminent, disinterested economists, members of the faculties of the leading universities of the land: Apply the public works remedy, through Federal aid, to the existing economic situation—in other words, finance through the Federal Government a gigantic scheme of essential public improvements through a PROSPERITY LOAN BOND ISSUE.

Scientific economists have long urged an approach to stability through retarding public works in time of boom and through expanding them in periods of depression.

In their joint memorandum economists make it clear that, though many of our public men have given lip service to the idea, they have not lived up to the sound principle.

"Despite all that has been said concerning the construction of public works, the fact remains that no significant increase in total expenditures for public works has yet been made," the statement says, pointing out that the moderate increases by the Federal Government have been offset by a decrease in the expenditures of States and local governments.

In introducing a five-billion-dollar prosperity loan the economists suggest that through Federal grants in aid and loans a large part of the fund be made available to the States and their subdivisions.

With perhaps 7,000,000 men without jobs and millions on part time assignments, re-employment of idle labor would be sufficient justification for such an emergency program.

But the thirty-one economists propose a step further, and believe that such a loan would be a powerful lever for reversing the destructive processes of deflation. "A courageous program of public works," they point out, "dramatically introduced and effectively carried through, may mean much more than immediate unemployment relief and the avoidance of great social waste from idleness. Such a program may well inject into our depressed economy the vitality necessary to start us on the road to a real economic recovery."

Such an operation would not, as has been fallaciously contended, deprive private business of capital, but would tend to effect a controlled credit expansion, which would make funds more readily available to private business.

The merit of the proposal lies in the fact that with credit expansion goes a program of production for utilizing it.

The Government spending program, on the other hand, might be interpreted by private executives as the turning point in the economic situation, and many would seek to jump on it.

New York Day by Day -- By O. O. McIntyre

A "Hide-Away"

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—On a stretch of upper Central Park West, is a bay-windowed house, with every appearance of a private residence, which is the hide-away for drink and drug addicts—usually of social rank. Here high-flyers lodge for a clipping of wings.

While under medical supervision, its sponsor is neither a physician nor a psychologist in the academic meaning of the word. He is a day to call on a patient who had been drinking. It's his life firm but there is no inherited craving for alcohol. He purports to have proved it hundreds of times.

He points to the fact there is not a drop of alcohol in nature. Instead of a "natural product," alcohol is an extract. In short, the garbage of vegetation, the offal of decaying plant life. More than 50 per cent of drinkers start through the channels of sobriety.

While we were talking there was a confusion in an outer hall. Through an open door I saw an extraordinary furred creature in a disarming state of debilitation. With recurring lurches she was being led to the stairs. A veil slipped and revealed the blurry profile of a great artist.

The institution believes every drunkard is sick. His tissues are poisoned, cells are loaded with under-oxidized material and elimination is imperfect. Another thing I learned about the confirmed "nut." Invariably he wants to organize a barber shop.

His favorite classic is "Sweet Adeline" in 98 acts out of 100. Science, incidentally, is able to deal with mathematical certainty.

a man is drunk and how drunk. Generally speaking, it is discovered that a person is intoxicated with a single drink.

Some psychiatrists, by the way, could put many of his instruments on the blink testing me today. I'm nursing a set of oblique goblets as the result of a note from Dr. Guy Campbell, enclosing the following:

Railroad Problem: There are three men in a train crew, Smith, Robinson and Jones. They are guard, engineer and fireman. There are three passengers, Mr. S., Mr. R. and Mr. J. Mr. R. lives in Leeds. The guard lives half way between Leeds and Sheffield. Mr. S. earns $40.00 per month. The guard's nearest neighbor (one of the three passengers) earns exactly three times as much as the guard. The guard's namesake lives in Sheffield. Smith beats the fireman at billiards. Who is the engineer?

Before bombarding this chronicle with hoots and snort, remember: The solution is possible and can be proved and re-checked. Tomorrow we may give a free lesson in ratiocating. Or a window demonstration in soap bubbling.

A venerable, kindly artist, who does not wish to be involved in controversy, sends me a ludicrous expose of the graphic rivalry that has convulsed the metropolis and placings them in modern settings with a background of modern slang. As he so ably says: "It doesn't matter for they are amusing to the present generation in new dress but we clingers chuckle at them long ago. What tickles me is that the dilettantes are championed as originators of a new style of humor, are invited to teas and interviewed by gushing lady reporters."

Recently my wife and I selected a Boston puppy for her sister Nellie in a West Virginia city. It was brought home to be shipped the next afternoon. We decided to keep it over night. The next day we found it in the corner of a box and more days and the time extended to a week. And if this column isn't so much today, dog lovers understand. The pup is on his way. Had he remained I planned to rename my apartment "The Kennel."

Scanned from the Savoy. "I read your article eagerly and like them. But when you try to jerk tears, you are merely slopping. Or does that upset you?"

Not exactly upset, but I confess a slight tilt.

Patman and Mellon; Mooney; Our Loans

By Claude G. Bowers

THE ATTACK by Representative Patman, of Texas, on Secretary Mellon, and the introduction by him of an impeachment resolution, was based upon a statute of the United States which is violated by Mr. Mellon's occupancy of the office he holds. There is no possible doubt about that.

The statute was adopted at the beginning of the Government and by the men who belonged to the days of the Revolution and the Constitution; and it provides that no man engaged in commerce, directly or indirectly, shall hold the post of Secretary of the Treasury.

Personally we think it a wise provision; it was still thought a wise provision as late as the Grant Administration when the Senate unanimously refused to confirm the appointment of Mr. Stewart, the merchant prince of New York City, on the very ground now urged against Mr. Mellon.

There is nothing vicious or undignified or improper in Mr. Patman's position. We really must not fall into the trap of blackguarding a man who insists on the observance of the law. But there is little possibility that anything will be done.

In little more than a year Mr. Mellon will go out of office by the force of the electorate. But since the United States is perfectly satisfied to have the statute of 1789 violated, it is to be hoped that Congress promptly will repeal the law. The Roman Republic was dead long before the forms of a republic were put aside. In common honesty the form of a republic is in harmony with the realities.

An Amazing Attitude

Until last Friday Congress had difficulty in getting a copy of the report of the Wickersham Committee, the expenses of which were paid by the people on the Mooney case. This part of the report had been lifted out and concealed. Mr. Wickersham apparently was responsible for the reason he gives:

"It does not seem to be in the public interest that it should be printed."

This was an amazing attitude. Why was it not in the public interest for the public to have the facts, as this committee, financed by the public, found them? Was there something shocking in the report?

Was some one or some agency being protected? Was there anything crooked in the Mooney case? Did the committee find there is something outrageous in this incident?

"Dollar Diplomacy" Comes Home

"Dollar Diplomacy" has frequently been denounced and criticized, but few Americans have thought it affected their own pocketbooks and consequently most have been acquiescent. Now that we find $815,000,000 in Latin-American loans in default, the Americans in possession of these bonds realize that "dollar diplomacy" comes home to them.

It appears from evidence submitted before a Senate committee that in the case of one of these loans to Bolivia the experts of the Department of Commerce advised against it on the ground that it was not a safe loan; and that the State Department brushed this report aside and gave its approval to the loan. With the approval of the American Government, the bankers floating the loan had a perfect selling market. Senator Carter Glass does not use extreme language when he says:

"They (the State Department) were careless in making every one of these loans for the $815,000,000 of defaulted South American bonds and for the outstanding indebtedness that will be paid by the United States."

When a government becomes more interested in the profits of the bankers than in the proper protection of American investors it ceases to become a government of the people or to deserve their confidence.

on the band wagon of recovery, helping along the process through pushing forward delayed capital expenditures and through restoring depleted inventories.

The plea of the economists for the spending of billions on constructing roads, bridges, reclamation and flood control projects, reforestation and elimination of grade crossings and erection of public buildings is in accord with the policy formulated by William Randolph Hearst in a nation-wide radio hookup on June 2 last.

Congress, on which rests a heavy responsibility for doing whatever lies in its power to help conditions, cannot afford to ignore the sound counsel of a diversified group of thoughtful and sound economists.

Congress should promptly pass a Prosperity Loan Bill and CREATE JOBS FOR THE JOBLESS.

No Slump in Star Business

Though he knows as much about the planets as any astrologer, Professor Einstein is said to be a relatively poor man. He once remarked that nobody is going to get rich by peering through telescopes at stars.

Not? How can that astrologer lady in New York who, it is claimed, has made over $1,000,000 out of reading stars? She casts optimistic horoscopes for clients at so much apiece.

Though astrology slumped a little because no one cunning in the heavens forecast the World War or the depression, it is still pretty much alive.

A publisher of books on it said a few days ago:

"Naturally, no person of any intelligence takes this astrological stuff seriously. It is all the bunk."

However, bunk is a marketable commodity. Star-gazers, palmists, fortune-tellers, peddlars in the stories of all sorts, sold New Yorkers well over three million dollars' worth of it in 1931.
